To The FCC,

I have been a longtime user of the XM Satellite Radio, 2 1/2 yrs now. I like the system due to being able to listen to music when I want to and talk radio when the mood hits me. With the addition of the Instant Traffic and wheather, that just made my job a lot easier. Instead of trying to find a FM radio station with traffic on, all I have to do is switch over to the proper XM station and get what I need instead of having to listen to a bunch of stuff I don't want to. As a truck driver I would pay twice as much just to have that service available when I need it, instead of when it is convenient for the FM station to broadcast it to the public. The XM programs give me what I want instead of having to put up with a lot of other stuff, don't have to listen to a lot of talk when I would like to listen to music. And it gives me this anywhere in the country, not just the bigger cities.

It should not be up to a group of people, NAB, to tell me what I should be able to listen to. Where I get my wheather and traffic from, or anything else. I enjoy being able to get my info for the road at my fingertips instead of relying on the local stations to do something, most of the time it is to short of a broadcast to do me any good.

So I respectfully urge the FCC to reject NAB's petition 04-160 and support the great programing that XM brings.

Sincerely,
William Harrison
